ESTIMATION OF BENEFITS

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

- What is an Estimation of Benefits?

This is information sent to contributing members of the GEPF that shows a summary of estimated pension benefits earned as at a certain date. It contains information such as personal details, employment details and pension benefits in case of exit as a result of:

 - Normal retirement;
 - Resignation;
 - Ill health retirement and discharge; and
 - Death.

These estimates are calculated based on the information available on GEPF's systems and are therefore provisional estimates based solely on the information at our disposal. All information will be verified on the member's eventual exit from GEPF.
- Why do we issue an Estimation of Benefits statement?

The issuing of the estimation of benefits information to members is a requirement of the Pension Fund Act, Circular 86. Importantly, GEPF adheres to the Government Pension Law (GEPF Law) and does not necessarily need to follow the guidelines issued in terms of the Pension Fund Act and PF Circulars. However, the Fund always strives to align international best practice and service to our members. Best practices specify the following purpose and benefits of issuing an Estimation of Benefits statement:

 - To improve communication between members and the Fund;
 - To empower members with adequate information;
 - To inform members about GEPF and their benefits with the Fund; and
 - To provide members with the current state of their information thereby allowing them to amend incorrect information through their Human Resource departments.

It is hoped that this initiative will encourage members to take more active ownership of their retirement provision.
- What is the frequency of issuing an Estimation of Benefits statement?

An Estimation of Benefits statement is issued annually to contributing members.
- How do you correct your personal details?

You need to submit a ZIS64 Personal Details update form to your Human Resource department, together with certified copies of the relevant documents, including your ID.
- What if any of my employment details are incorrect?

If any of your employment details are incorrect, you need to inform your employer department to update your information on the Z125 form.
